2015 ANNUAL REPORT

INTERNATIONAL LABORATORY FOR AIR QUALITY and HEALTH
(ILAQH)

1. Introduction

The International Laboratory for Air Quality and Health (ILAQH) is part of the Institute for Health and Biomedical Innovation (IHBI) and the Institute for Future Environments (IFE), at the Queensland University of Technology (QUT). ILAQH undertakes research, postgraduate training and consultancy in the complex, interdisciplinary field of air quality and its impact on human health, with a specific focus on ultrafine and nanoparticles. The three main aspects of ILAQH research activities are:

- Comprehensive characterisation of indoor and outdoor air, including emission sources;
- Integrated health and environmental risk assessments; and
- Strategies for controlling and managing air pollutants.

To address the challenge related to the interdisciplinary nature of air pollution and its impact on human health, academics from a number of Faculties within QUT are involved with the programs undertaken by the ILAQH, including discipline areas such as: physics, chemistry, microbiology, mathematics, public health and engineering. The expertise of the ILAQH personnel is strengthened by close collaboration with a number of government and non-government organizations. Through joint research, lecturing and postgraduate student supervision, the ILAQH collaborates closely with a number of North American, European and Asian research and tertiary organizations.

The facility is equipped with state of the art instrumentation for aerosol generation, mass and number size classification; monitoring of atmospheric gases; real time biological studies; vehicle emission testing, filter testing, lung deposition studies, and computer modelling. Access to electron microscopy and analytical chemistry facilities is available through the links existing within the Science and Engineering Faculty.

ILAQH has built up a scientific program, which is recognised internationally through a high publication rate in reputable international journals, visits by scholars from around the world to the facility, and invitations to the ILAQH key researchers to address international conferences and participate in international initiatives. In Australia both the Queensland State and the Federal government and non-government organizations regularly seek the expertise of this facility.

ILAQH is a Collaborating Centre of the World Health Organization on Research and Training in the field of Air Quality and Health, since 2004.

3. Major Developments

In recognition of ILAQH's contribution, the World Health Organisation has designated ILAQH, QUT for the third time as a WHO Collaborating Centre in 2015.

The Annual Meeting of the ACC-AQSM was held at QUT from the 30 November – 2 December 2015. Professor Morawska is currently leading efforts of an international, multi-disciplinary centre of research, the 'Australia - China Centre for Air Quality Science and Management' (ACC-AQSM). The aim of the ACC-AQSM is to provide a platform for joint research to further scientific understanding of the multidimensional problem of air pollution and its impact on human health and the environment, to provide technological and innovative solutions to the problem, and to provide input into national policies and thus enabling informed and efficient regular management and control.
